

Examine key concepts to develop questions and strategy

Clustering binds together similar documents and allows them to be reviewed in groups, rather than the disjointed sequence found in traditional linear review software. This gives counsel a decided edge when developing their strategy by reducing the time required to understand the primary evidence contained in the documents.

Eliminate data blind spots

With Ringtail, attorneys can use key documents proactively to find similar documents that may have been overlooked. Counsel can also use Ringtail's concept overview – which provides a complete list of all concepts, and their frequency in the document set – to select, sort and examine relationships between the documents that other solutions miss.
